All rooks are in a different row. Because rows and columns are independent, we can now apply the same method for the columns.